Tentative Syllabus

Course Requirements

Students will be required to take an open book exam on the last day of the course. The exam will be three hours long. Computers will not be allowed during the exam.

Given prior and individual approval by the lecturer, each student may be allowed to write an academic essay on a topic related to the course issues instead of the exam. The essay proposal will be submitted via email to the instructor, Ofer Shinar Levanon (ofer.shinar@gmail.com), by the end of the first week of the course. Late submissions will not be accepted. Only those students who receive written approval from Ofer Shinar will be able to submit an essay in place of the exam. The essay will not exceed 3000 words and will be submitted by August 20th, 2019, via email to: rissummer@savion.huji.ac.il, and via hard copy to the following address:

Course Description

This course will present current academic research as well as the practical aspects regarding the Israeli-Arab conflict, one of the most significant international conflicts of our time. Furthermore, it will provide a broad multidisciplinary perspective on Israeli society as a side to an intractable conflict.

The failure of the Oslo Process presents an example of the difficulties stemming from conflict resolution of an intractable conflict. The course will additionally address the manner in which societies are influenced by their involvement in an intractable conflict, a long, unrelenting and violent conflict. Such conflicts become a major source of social identity and cohesion, a challenge to conflict resolution efforts, forcing peace makers to develop knowledge and expertise regarding the roots of the conflict.

The course will also examine the activities and role of the Israeli peace camp as well as the role of political leadership in the resolution of the conflict with the Palestinians.

The course will include a field trip as well as guest lecturers, allowing the students to meet both peace activists as well as conflict resolution scholars.
